Industry News

United Lithium announced a 4000m drill program at its Bergby Lithium project in Sweden. The program is designed to expand known lithium-bearing pegmatites along strike and depth, explore potential parallel zones, and test several lithium-bearing outcrops. The drill crews have already mobilized to Bergby, with the program expected to be concluded by end of July 23.

Gungnir Resources announced it is finalizing plans to conduct a 30-line kilometer EM survey on its Hemberget property, targeting shallow conductors in a large, layered mafic-ultramafic intrusion. A similar, but much smaller intrusion, previously discovered on the company's nearby Knافتen property was found to contain magmatic sulfide mineralization.
